

Kāliya (II)—a dānava king.

Br. IV. 29. 124.

Kāliyas—the serpents of Mahātalam.

Bhā. V. 24. 29.

Kālī (I)—one of the wives of Bhimasena, and mother of Sarvagata.

Bhā. IX. 22. 31.

Kālī (II)—a mother goddess, and a varṇa śakti;¹ a goddess enshrined at Kālanjara; took part in the Tārakā-maya and enveloped the whole in darkness.²

¹ Br. IV. 7. 72; 44. 59 & 76. ² M. 13. 32; 172. 19.

Kālī (III)—a doorkeeper of Mahākāla.

Br. IV. 32. 18.

Kālī (IV)—the Dāśeyī brought forth Vicitravīrya by Śantanu.

M. 50. 45.

Kālī (V)—a mind-born mother;¹ from the bones of Nṛsimha.²

¹ M. 179. 14. ² Ib. 179. 26, 64.

Kālī (VI)—the wife of Parāśara and mother of Kṛṣṇa-dvaipāyana.

Vā. 70. 84.

Kālī (VII)—R. a sacred river.

M. 22. 20.

Kāliyanāga—the venemous serpent in a pool of Yamunā; Kṛṣṇa dived into it and was about to kill him when on an appeal from the wives of Nāga and the Nāga